ROYAL STARS OF BASEBALL No. 11

PHIL RIZZUTO
One of the Major's smallest men, Phil is 5' 6", weighs 160. The right-handed was born in New York City, Sept. 25, 1918.
The New York Yankees' shortstop is an exceptional buster and an out-standing fielder. Excepting a 3-year service hitch, Phil has been with the Yanks since 1941. He led the circuit in league record for shortstops by taking part in 5 double plays in one 1942 game.

1950-52 Royal Desserts Stars of Baseball Introduction

In 1950, Royal Desserts, as a promotion for their pudding and gelatin products, issued a set of greyscale photos of baseball players on the back of their boxes. Current MLB players, eventual Hall of Famers, as well as lesser stars, were included in the set. A banner on the top of the “card” declared that these were “ROYAL DESSERTS STARS OF BASEBALL”. The promotion lasted through 1952. The cards featured the player’s career highlights and vital statistics. When one of these players was traded or had some notable accomplishment, a new version of the card was issued with a different cap logo or updated text. A nice, four-bordered card should measure 2-5/8” x 3-1/4”.

At some point, packages with blue-tinted photos were also issued. In addition, an eight-page comb-bound booklet to store the cards could be purchased for 15¢ and three box fronts from any Royal dessert. In 1952, a “premium” set of sixteen 5” x 7” photos was issued. They contained the words “To A Royal Fan” and a facsimile autograph. Stan Musial was the “face” of this offering. The St. Louis Cardinals star was pictured on the number 1 card, the editor of the “Royal Book of Baseball Facts”, and the mentor for the Stan Musial Clean-up Club.

The following five pages contain a sampling of the checklists that were published in vintage baseball card catalogs and hobby publications. They are filled with inaccuracies and omissions.

"The Trader Speaks" - December 1976

One of the most popular post-World War II sets is entitled Royal Stars of Baseball and was issued on the back of Royal Gelatine Desserts from 1949 to 1951. The 3 1/2" by 2 1/2" blank back cards were printed in either black and white or blue and white. Many had their texts changed over the three year period plus some had different team designations due to trades. As you'll note #12 Tommy Henrich is misspelled. With all the changes in the set you'd think they'd have corrected the spelling! The 24 card set is checklisted below. Cards marked * exist with 2 different texts; Cards marked  exist with 2 different team designations and texts; Cards marked  exist with 2 different team designations and 3 different texts.

The Royal Stars are valued at approximately $5.00 to $8.00 each depending on the player..

There are many errors in this checklist: The cards were issued from 1950 to 1952; a full-bordered card should measure 3-1/4" x 2-5/8". There is no evidence that a "Henrick" card was ever produced. There are 3 different Ray Scarborough cards. There are 5 different Sisler cards. Virgil Trucks is listed with 2 different teams, he has 3 different cards - all with the tigers.

Surprising Variations Revealed In Royal Dessert Cards

By Gavin Riley
BCN Editorial Commentator

The Royal Stars of Baseball set is very familiar to non gum card collectors and has been checklisted numerous times in the past. The twenty-four, numbered, blank backed cards measuring 2½ x 3½ inches if cut properly, were issued one per box on the back of various Royal Dessert products. What is not generally known is the fact that this issue was available from 1950 thru 1952 with the same players and pictures but the biographies and team designations updated. There are four different biographies for some players plus the blue tint with red in 1950 as well as the standard black and white with red. It thus seems logical that there are a potential five different sets of this issue or a total of 120 cards. Such does not seem to be the case, however.

Second Biographies Missing

A number of players from the set (Henrich, Gordon, Appling, Ostrowski and Fernandez) either retired or otherwise left the major leagues after 1950 and no second biographies have ever been discovered for them. Thus, the unanswered question arises as to whether these players were dropped from the subsequent issues or simply reissued as is to keep the set at twenty-four. There also should be updates for Dark, Robinson and Fain but none have as yet surfaced.

The 1952 updates would also seem to be random as only a few players have them and some of those seem to have had it done twice during the year. When all the dust settles, the known cards in this set stands at 71 (24 in 1950 with the same 24 on the blue tint butterscotch pudding box and 23 total updates).

Nanny Fernandez Toughest Card

The key to the set is #23, Nanny Fernandez, who spent most of his career in the Pacific Coast League. He spent parts of only four seasons in the Major Leagues, the last of which was 1950 when he appeared in 65 games and batted .258. His credentials for inclusion in this set are therefore very suspect. Whether dropped from the set after 1950 by Royal or destined by kids turning the boxes over to check the backs for notable players, he is clearly the hardest card in the set to find.

Also very tough are the 1952 updates with the italicized print line "Offer good only in continental USA, its territories and possessions" at the end of the biography.

Finally, the lower righthand corner of each card contained instructions on a premium offer from Royal Desserts. That set of 16 black and white 5 x 7 photos (F-219-6) contained players available in this set in a larger size.

My thanks to Tom Reid of Belleville, New Jersey, who contributed his checklist of variations to help in this final tabulation of the known changes.

The below checklist is quite comprehensive. It details the issue date of the base set and 23 variations. Still, there are some errors and omissions. For example, Andy Seminick was with the Reds in 1952, not the Cubs. The 2nd Scarborough card with the White Sox does not exist. The checklist is missing the Rojek (Cardinals) card and the Sisler (Cardinals) card. The article does list only one Ostrowski card (with no team designation). See page 17 for more information.

Notes:

The 1950 - 1953 Royal Desserts baseball card set consist of 32 cards that measure 2 1/2" x 3 1/2" with an additional 12 cards counting variations. (44 in total). The hand cut cards were issued on the back of Royal Dessert product boxes. Intact boxes are rare and have a higher collectors value. The front of the card features a black and white portrait of the player, a short bio, and a mail in offer for a album to hold the cards. The cards are numbered on the front, as the back is blank.

- 1A Stan Musial VAR (2nd paragraph; Musial batted 345...)
- 1B Stan Musial VAR (2nd paragraph; Musail's 207 base hits...)

VAR - Variation:

This checklist is a mess. It reports that the set is comprised of 32 cards and 12 variations (but lists 33 cards, only 2 of which are variations). The checklist confuses base set cards (24) with variations. It seems strange that only the Musial variations are included, but other, obvious ones like Reese, Kell, DiMaggio, and Spahn are not. The Virgil Trucks (with the St. Louis Browns) card is included in error. The years of issue: 1950-53, and card size, are also incorrect.

"SCD Standard Catalog of Vintage Baseball Cards"

1950 Royal Desserts

This set was issued one per box on the backs of various Royal Dessert products over a period of three years. The basic set contains 24 players, however a number of variations create the much higher total for the set. In 1950, Royal issued cards with two different tints - black and white with red, or blue and white with red. Over the next two years, various sentences of the cards' biographies were updated; up to three times in some cases. Some players from the set left the majors after 1950 and others were apparently never updated, but the 23 biography updates that do exist, added to the original 24 cards issued in 1950, give the set a total of 47 cards. The 2-5/8" x 3-1/4" cards are blank-backed with personal and playing biographies alongside the card front photos. Some sample cards can be found with advertising for the desserts on back; they are valued at about double regular card prices. A comb-bound album with seven pages to hold 14 cards was also issued in a 3-1/4" x 3-3/8" format with "Royal Stars" and a crown logo printed in red on white.

This checklist is quite comprehensive. It contains the 24 base cards, plus 24 variations and 2 Ad Cards. It's missing The Rojek and Sisler (Cardinals) cards and the Seminick and Blackwell Ad Cards. It erroneously contains the Scarborough 2nd White Sox card and the Ostrowski White Sox card. Team designations for some cards are missing.

Cap logos for the 3 Rojek cards: Pirates, Cardinals, and Browns. Note: the Cardinals and Browns logos are quite similar.

These cards have always fascinated me: 24 different players, from Stan Musial - 3,026 games played over a 22-year career to Nanny Fernandez - 408 games over 4 years. All MLB teams are represented except the lowly Browns. I started my collection in 2006 with a Bobby Thomson card. I learned there are variation cards issued when a player changed teams or was involved in a significant baseball event. For example, a second Bobby Thomson card was produced in 1952 that mentions his series-winning home run in the 1951 playoffs with the Dodgers.

If you have a collector's mentality, you're going to need a checklist to keep track of what you have and what you need. Finding an accurate checklist for these cards posed a problem. The 24 base cards issued in 1950 were fairly obvious. The variations on these cards were a lot harder to pin down. The existing checklists weren't much help. Issue dates of 1949 through 1953 were mentioned. The number of variations was wildly inconsistent. I concluded that there wasn't a correct checklist in publication – either in print or on the internet.

I decided to create a fact-based checklist. I needed to see the actual card or an image of a card before it could be included in my checklist. As I went along, I posted the images I had to baseball card forums and shared them with other collectors of the set. I got a lot of help and was surprised to find there were many cards that I never knew existed. The results of my efforts are what you see starting on page 10: twenty-four base cards, twenty-four variations, four advertisement cards, and one “error” card, for a total of 53.

1950-52 Royal Desserts Stars of Baseball Checklist Conclusions

Every Royal Desserts Stars of Baseball checklist I've ever seen, either in hard copy or online, is missing something or has added something that cannot be verified. I started this project to rectify this situation. I'm currently at 53 cards.

24 base cards with confirmed images. (1950 issue).

24 variation cards with confirmed images. (1950-52 issues).

4 cards with advertising backs: Reese, Kell, Seminick, and Blackwell.

1 "error" card: Brissie - "Formerly with the Phillies".

25 "Blue Tint" cards are known to exist. (see checklist).

I'm not including three "phantom" cards that have appeared in various published checklists: a 2nd Scarborough card with the White Sox, Ostrowski with the White Sox, and Trucks with the Browns. As far as I know, none of these three cards has ever been seen in the collecting hobby.

Ray Scarborough: appeared in 34 games for the Senators in 1949. After only 8 games in 1950, he was traded to the White Sox. He appeared in 27 games for the White Sox in 1950. He signed with the Red Sox on 12/10/50. He was with the White Sox for only 7 months in 1950. It seems very unlikely that 2 different cards would have been issued for him with the White Sox. My conclusion is that Ray had 2 cards issued in 1950: Senators and White Sox, and his card with the Red Sox was issued in 1951. I'm not including a 2nd White Sox card in my checklist.

Johnny Ostrowski: his 1st card is listed in some checklists as being with the White Sox. He played there in 1949, and in only one game at the start of 1950. He was traded to the Senators on 5/31/50. If a card was originally issued with the White Sox, it was possibly updated to the Senators early in production, resulting in extremely limited distribution. However, early checklists for Ostrowski mention only one card. I am not including a White Sox card in my checklist.

Virgil Trucks: Is there a 4th card with the Browns? Some early checklists mention this. He was traded from the Tigers to the Browns on 12/4/52. If there is a fourth Trucks card as a member of the Browns, it would have been issued in 1953. As far as I know, this is a 1950-52 set. I am not including this card in my checklist.

Lou Brissie: lost 19 games for the Athletics in 1950. He started only 2 games for them in 1951. He was then traded to the Indians on 4/30/51. The "Formerly with the Phillies..." error card and the corrected card were probably both issued in 1951.

1950 Season Highlights

The 1950 Major League Baseball season was an exciting and competitive year in the history of the sport. Here are the key highlights and events that shaped the season:

- 1. American League Pennant Race: The New York Yankees dominated the American League, finishing the regular season with a record of 98 wins and 56 losses. Led by legendary manager Casey Stengel, the Yankees boasted a formidable lineup that included stars like Joe DiMaggio, Yogi Berra, and Phil Rizzuto.
- 2. National League Pennant Race: The Philadelphia Phillies had a remarkable season, clinching the National League pennant with a record of 91 wins and 63 losses. It was the Phillies' first pennant since 1915, and their success was attributed to strong performances from players like Richie Ashburn and Robin Roberts.
- 3. All-Star Game: The 1950 MLB All-Star Game took place at Comiskey Park in Chicago. The National League emerged victorious, defeating the American League 4–3 in a closely contested game.
- 4. Most Valuable Players: The American League MVP award went to New York Yankees shortstop Phil Rizzuto, whose outstanding defensive play and timely hitting helped lead the Yankees to another pennant. In the National League, Philadelphia Phillies relief pitcher Jim Konstanty became the first relief pitcher in history to win the league's MVP award.
- 5. Rookie of the Year: In the inaugural year of the Rookie of the Year award, Alvin Dark of the Boston Braves (now the Atlanta Braves) won the National League honor. In the American League, Chicago White Sox first baseman Walt Dropo captured the award after batting .322 with 34 home runs and 144 RBIs.
- 6. World Series: The New York Yankees faced the Philadelphia Phillies in the 1950 World Series. The Yankees completed a four-game sweep, capturing their 13th World Championship. Joe DiMaggio and Yogi Berra were among the stars who led New York to victory.
- 7. The "Whiz Kids": One of the season's greatest stories was the emergence of the youthful Philadelphia Phillies, nicknamed the "Whiz Kids." Built around young stars such as Richie Ashburn, Robin Roberts, Del Ennis, Curt Simmons, and Willie Jones, the Phillies won their first National League pennant in 35 years and energized baseball fans throughout Philadelphia.
- 8. Integration of African American Players: The 1950 season marked the continued integration of African American players into Major League Baseball. Jackie Robinson and Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Larry Doby of the Cleveland Indians, and other pioneering players continued to demonstrate that talent—not race—belonged at the highest level of the game while helping to reshape the future of baseball.

Led NL short-stops in DPs in 1951. Led the NL with 41 doubles in 1951. Hit .417 in the 1951 WS. A 3-time NL All-Star at SS: 1951, 1952, 1953. Received MVP votes in ‘51 and ‘52.

1950-52 Royal Desserts Stars of Baseball – The Players

19 – Sisler – Phillies → Reds → Cardinals LF Son of HOFer George Sisler. Put the Phillies in the 1950 WS, with a 10th inning HR on the last day of the season. Dick's exploits in the 1950 pennant race were immortalized by Ernest Hemingway in his book "The Old Man And The Sea".	20 – Ostrowski – Senators LF Johnny was primarily a left fielder. He had a completely undistinguished 7-year career with 4 different AL teams. Why he was included in this set remains a mystery. Where's Eddie Yost or Mickey Vernon?	21 – Trucks – Tigers RSP "Fire" Trucks had a 5-19 record in 1952, but two of his wins were no-hitters. He is among only 6 ML pitchers to do so. Virgil had a 17-year career with 5 different AL teams. Lifetime record: 177-135.

22– Robinson – White Sox 1B Had 29 HRs, 117 RBI in 1951. Eddie was on the AL A-S team in 1951 and 1952. Eddie played for 7 of the 8 AL teams during his 13-year career. Ted Williams said that Robinson "was the most underrated and best clutch hitter I ever played against".	23 – Fernandez – Pirates 3B Froilan "Nanny" Fernandez was primarily a 3rd baseman. He had a 4-year career with the Boston Braves and the Pittsburgh Pirates. He is another mystery inclusion in this set. Where's Ralph Kiner?	24 – Fain – Athletics 1B Nickname: "Burrhead". Fain won the AL batting titles with a .344 average in 1951 and a .327 average in 1952. In 1950, he was named to the first of 5 consecutive All-Star teams. He was a lifetime .290 hitter with a .424 OBP.

Blue tint card values should be doubled.

As with the checklists, the published values for these cards are outdated. This is my attempt to bring some order to the chaos. It's just a straight-line list of values from Authentic to Mint. Raw, base set cards listed on eBay are mostly in poor condition. They usually sell for between $30 and $50. HOFeers are more expensive, with Musial leading the way. Variations (cards other than the base set) are hardly ever seen. Scarce variations sell in the $300 to $500 range. Graded cards sell for more than their raw counterparts. Cards in near-mint or higher condition are hardly ever seen in the marketplace. The above prices do not account for the scarcity of any particular card.

In order to get an idea of the relative “rarity” of each of the 53 cards in the set, I examined three things on 8/5/2026: the cards listed on eBay (both for sale and already sold) and the Population Reports of both PSA and SGC. The 846 cards I looked at are distributed as above. On the next page, I have assigned a rarity factor to each card based on this distribution, with 1 being the most common and 10 being the rarest.

Thoughts on card rarity: the 24 base cards issued in 1950 are quite easy to find, with the exception of Ostrowski, Fernandez, Trucks, and Scarborough. The fourteen 1951 issues are more difficult to acquire. The 1952 issues are even harder to obtain. 1952-issued cards are rarely seen in the marketplace. Most of the cards seen on eBay are badly cut, creased, or soiled. Clean, four-bordered cards from any year are seldom seen. In the above table, a factor of 1 equals the most common cards, and 10 equals the rarest.

1950-52 Royal Desserts Stars of Baseball Card Value Calculation

Grade	Common Value	HOF Value	Rarity	Rarity Factor	HOF Value + Rarity
2.5	$60	$120	1	1.1	$132
3	$80	$160	2	1.2	$192
3.5	$100	$200	3	1.3	$260
4	$125	$250	4	1.4	$350
4.5	$150	$300	5	1.5	$450
5	$175	$375	6	1.6	$600

If you use a card's Grade, the Suggested Values from page 27, and the Rarity Factors from page 29, you can estimate a value for your cards. I got the Rarity Factor idea from a ChatGPT query. This is a sort of semi-scientific method that matches up pretty well with asking prices in the marketplace. The PSA 4 Phil Rizzuto, below, with a 1 Rarity Factor would be worth $275.00. It sold on eBay (May, 2026) for $262.50.

In March 2026, the market for these cards showed some very strong results on eBay. These are all raw cards: a beautiful Thomson 10b card sold for $1,025. A so-so Scarborough 14c sold for $510. A Sisler 19c, with no borders, sold for $2,490. Another Sisler 19d that was creased sold for $1,614. These prices show renewed interest in the set and just how scarce and desirable some of them are.

1952 Royal Desserts Premiums

In 1952, the Royal Desserts Company issued a series of 16 black-and-white action photos of some of the players from the dessert packages, on thin glossy paper. The unnumbered photos include a facsimile autograph, along with the notation, "To a Royal Fan." Eight players from the original package backs were not included: Henrich, Gordon, Rojek, Appling, Marshall, Ostrowski, Trucks, and Fernandez. Five players are pictured with new teams: Brissie (Indians), Pafko (Dodgers), Scarborough (Red Sox), Seminick, and Sisler (Reds). The Musial is by far the most valuable. Active listings on eBay (8/26) show a PSA 9 Musial listed for $4,999.99 and an SGC 2.5 for $660. Spahn, Reese, Rizzuto, Kell, and DiMaggio are the next most valuable. I have not been able to determine how these photos were distributed.

1950 Royal Desserts Extras

In 1950, Royal Desserts offered an album for their various “stars” card sets. It is a comb-bound booklet that could store 16 cards in celluloid pages and measures 3-1/8” by 3-1/8”. These can be found on eBay from time to time and are in the $100 price range.

Another Royal bonus for baseball fans was this 32-page magazine titled “Royal Book of Baseball Facts (1950 Edition)”. It is full of interesting facts and statistics from 1949, and was allegedly edited by Stan Musial. Some of the topics included in the book are: 1949 Major League Standings, 1949 Batting and Pitching Records, and a listing of Hall of Fame members as of 1949. These are quite scarce, in nice shape, and are valued at more than $100.

Stan Musial was the face of the 1950 Royal Desserts Stars of Baseball offering. He was one of the most prominent stars in baseball and was pictured on the No. 1 card - the most valuable card in the set. It's not surprising that Royal used his image to sell their products to kids. Royal instituted the Stan Musial Clean-Up Club, which encouraged kids to "clean up their plates" at breakfast, lunch, and dinner - then they could enjoy a Royal dessert. A Clean-Up Chart was given out at the grocery store when you bought 3 packages of Royal gelatin desserts. After one week of clean plates, the chart could be sent in for 3 free gifts: a St. Louis Cardinals' emblem, a Clean-Up Club pin, and a signed 5 x 7 picture of Stan Musial. A letter from Stan would accompany the free gifts. (see next page). The ad at the right comes from a 1950 newspaper. I remember seeing cards on the backs of Royal packages in the 50s, but never knew that this promotion was being offered.

1950-52 Royal Desserts Stars of Baseball Final Thoughts

This is the card that inspired me to begin collecting this set. I kept seeing it in my copy of "The Sport Americana Baseball Price Guide #2" by Beckett and Eckes. "Pee Wee" is just inviting you to collect this set. I bought my first card, 20 years ago, on eBay: Bobby Thomson, No. 10a. I've had a great deal of enjoyment collecting these cards and writing this "book". I hope other collectors will be able to use this information to increase their enjoyment of this set and further their collections. Just remember, when your collection reaches about 30 different cards, be prepared to wait a while between purchases.

Many Royal Desserts collectors helped me with this book, including Tom Billing, Mike Cady, Alan Gould, Otis Johnson, Peter Mead, Mike Mosier, Mike Rich, Bob Richardson, John Scott, and Larry Serota.

One more thought: How on earth could the Royal Desserts Co. not have included Willie "Puddin' Head" Jones in the set? Willie was the starting 3rd baseman for the Phillies from 1949 to 1959. He enjoyed a solid 15-year MLB career.
